The Newgrange School of Princeton, Inc. Welcomes Tim Viands as Head of Schools

Dyslexia Awareness is Top Priority

PRINCETON, NJ, Aug. 7, 2018 – The Newgrange School of Princeton, Inc., a leading network of educational environments and support resources for students who learn differently, has appointed Tim Viands of Langhorne, PA, to Head of Schools / Executive Director.

Ann Robinowitz, President of The Newgrange Board of Trustees, made the announcement.

Dedicated to transforming its students into confident, independent learners through research-based education, Newgrange is comprised of The Laurel School of Princeton, which specializes in assisting promising students with dyslexia or other related language-based learning differences; The Newgrange School of Hamilton, a state-approved resource for individuals with such learning challenges as autism, Asperger's Syndrome, and dyslexia; and the Ann Robinowitz Education Center, which provides educational evaluations, dyslexia screening, tutoring, and professional development.

“After an extensive national search, we are thrilled to welcome Tim to the Newgrange family,” said Robinowitz. “A well-respected leader in education, Tim is committed to empowering young people who learn differently, and he’s a strong believer that professional development is integral to that mission,” she added.

“I’m honored and excited to help make The Laurel School and Newgrange more accessible to those students in the region who learn differently and who will benefit from our vast resources,” said Viands.

He noted he plans to accomplish this, in part, through outreach to other independent schools in New Jersey and Pennsylvania to identify individuals with dyslexia and other language-based learning differences.

“I’m also looking forward to working with the great educators of The Laurel School and Newgrange to strengthen the community’s understanding of the complexities of dyslexia and other unique learning challenges,” he added. “In this increasingly diverse world of ours, it is essential to appreciate, accept and celebrate the differences of others – for there is so much more potential than what appears on the surface.”

Viands earned his B.S. from Towson University and his M.A. from Wesleyan University. Most recently, he served as the headmaster at Grand River Academy — an all-boys boarding school in Ohio for young men who have potential, but learn differently. He served on the boards at the Ohio Association of Independent Schools and Big Brothers Big Sisters of Northeast Ohio. He has led accreditation visits for the Independent Schools Association of the Central States (ISACS)
